

AquaSpace

Where does the fish for dinner come from? Transition Year Video Contest

Kick off for the competition is September 2016

1st Prize
€ 300

The competition closes in February 2017

AquaSpace is an EU funded project. The project comprises groups from 10 European countries and 4 Non- EU countries

As part of the project each European country is running a National Schools Video Contest. The Irish competition is being run by MaREI in UCC

The AquaSpace video contest aims to capture the views of young people on aquaculture and educate them on where the fish we eat for dinner comes from

In addition to the winning prize, the top videos will be screened at the 2017 First Cut Youth Film Festival

The central goal of the AquaSpace project is to provide increased space of high water quality for aquaculture by adopting the Ecosystem Approach to Aquaculture (EAA) using Marine Spatial Planning (MSP) to deliver food security and increased employment opportunities through economic growth
